Greece has always been a destination for shoulder-dropping moments, a place where the blues feels almost too blue and where you can feel the weight of embedded Aegean history. Nowadays, as appealing as road tripping or island-hopping is, the smart money for burned-out families is an all-inclusive resort that delivers the same sea, sky, sun and untrodden shores, but without the deep panic of running around with unimpressed kids.

From mainland to peninsula to island, Greece is home to the most astonishing hotels and resorts, even if there are as many adult-only retreats these days as there are places that'll look after your brood. Want the best of both worlds? Here are the top beach resorts with bells-and-whistles kids' clubs, family-friendly rooms and suites, and as much bucket and spade potential as you could want.

12. Andronis Concept Wellness Resort, Santorini

Best for peace and quiet

Santorini might well be the realm of Instagrammers and honeymooners, but this cliff-topping spa hotel in Imerovigli is a sanctuary away from the Oia swarms. The only luxury family wellness resort on the island, it specialises in grown-up experiences for children (photo safaris, cooking lessons, tween yoga, parent and child massage) and yet is intimate enough for every room to have a private pool. Add the ultimate Greek Islands sunset that Santorini is so famous for and you know you've hit the holiday jackpot.
