Andronis Minois

Paros continues to step up as a fierce rival to iconic Cycladic destinations like Santorini and Mykonos, and Andronis Minois has quickly become the go-to spot to experience it all. Found stone's throw from Parikia village, the Pounta ferry port and the airport, Andronis Minois sheds the traditional all-white Cycladic look for a polychromatic makeover, bursting with terracotta shades, bold blues, bespoke tiles and eye-catching textiles. The 44 rooms and suites, crafted by the creative minds at Athens-based Mutiny, are a mash-up of Mediterranean charm and modern boutique chic. Each space is a masterpiece, adorned with hand-painted sinks, abstract art and terracotta tile panels. The hotel has also carved out a niche with gastronomic destination Olvo, thanks to its partnership with Alexandros Tsiotinis of the Michelin-starred CTC in Athens.
